JAP AIR FLEET WARNS CHINA

More Opposition Against Nomination of Bailey

State Committee Is Criticized by Judge R. A. Cook

Hints That He Will Again Seek Office of Governor

THIRD IN LAST RACE

Would Prevent Recurrence of Present Party Situation

PINE BLUFF, Ark.—(AP)—Judge R. A. Cook of Pulaski county, third high man in the primary race for governor last year, Wednesday severely criticized the Democratic State Committee nomination of Governor Carl E. Bailey for the current United States senate vacancy in a statement given to the Pine Bluff Commercial, afternoon newspaper.

Without making any specific reference to a call for a state convention to nominate an opponent for Bailey, Judge Cook said:

"The people of this state should demand the right of franchise for this high office."

His statement hinted he would again seek the governor's office when he asserted "if I ever am your governor," he would take steps to prevent a recurrence of the present party situation.

Bailey Is Silent
LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—Factional differences within the democratic party in Arkansas over selection of a nominee for the United States senate seat held by the late Joe T. Robinson has become an open breach.

Reaction to the Saline county developments of Tuesday included a call for a special meeting of the county committee in Arkansas county to be held at DeWitt Friday afternoon and a statement from J. D. Sanderson, Miller county democratic chairman, that Miller would join Saline in the state convention plan.

Sanderson said the Miller group was scheduled to meet August 9, but would probably meet sooner to name convention delegates.

The Saline committee charged that Governor Bailey, "after denouncing committee nominations time after time has forced his own nomination at the hands of the state committee composed largely of appointees and employees of the state."

Bailey made no comment.

Meanwhile, two democrats announced they would run as independents against the governor in the special senate election which probably will be held September 14. The announcements came from J. Rosser Venable, 48, Little Rock world war veteran, and Robert F. Waters, 48, Yell county school examiner and humorous writer.

Venable ran against Senator Robinson in last year's primary but has never held a public office. Waters is a newcomer in politics. Both criticized the state committee nomination.

Still, 22 Gallons Whisky Is Seized

Orville and Albert Powell, Brothers, Arrested in Separate Raids

A 60-gallon capacity copper still and 12 gallons of whisky were seized shortly before noon Wednesday about a mile south of the Hempstead line in Lafayette county by Revenue Agents Albert Giller and Buck McKenize and State Policeman Sweeney Copeland.

The still was in operation. Orville Powell, white man, was arrested at the scene and lodged in jail at Hope to await a hearing before U. S. Commissioner Phillips at Texarkana.

A companion of Powell fled from the scene and disappeared in the woods. Officers brought the still and whisky to Hope. About 400 gallons of mash was destroyed.

The same officers, accompanied by Deputy Sheriff Reginald Boarden of Hope, seized 10 gallons of whisky near the Albert Powell home 12 miles south of Hope early Tuesday morning.

They arrested Powell, who is a brother of Orville Powell, the man arrested in Lafayette county Wednesday. No still was found Tuesday. The whisky was found buried in thickets near the Powell home.

How 'Atom-Smasher' Will Look

The huge pear-shaped tank, 30 feet in diameter and 47 feet high, shown above, is Westinghouse Electric's much-talked-about "atom-smasher" with which scientists in Pittsburgh hope to solve some of the mysteries surrounding the structure of matter. When preparations are completed the research experts within the tank will bombard targets of various materials with sub-microscopic particles shot from the "atom-smasher," at anywhere from 30 to 100 million miles an hour, and study the results.

Big Peach Is Put On Exhibit in Hope

Weights One and Quarter Pounds and Measures 13 1/4 Inches

A perfectly-shaped peach weighing one and a quarter pounds and measuring 13 1/4 inches in circumference was brought to Hope Wednesday from the E. M. McWilliams farm near Shover Springs.

Mr. McWilliams presented the mammoth peach to Police Chief John W. Ridgill who later put it on display at the John S. Gibson drugstore, South Elm street.

Mathematically speaking, it would take less than two dozen such peaches to fill a half bushel basket. Mr. Ridgill "figured" it out at exactly 22.

After a few days of display at the drugstore, Mr. Ridgill plans to present the peach to his 92-year-old mother, Mrs. H. C. Ridgill, who makes her home with her son.

Mr. McWilliams said the peach was of the Hale variety. He has other large peaches, but this one is the "grand-daddy" of them all.

Man Killed When He Tries to Catch Train

Harold Poe, 33, Meets Death Under Freight at Mena

MENA, Ark.—(AP)—Harold Poe, 33, transfer company employee of Kansas City, Mo., was killed at Hutton, 30 miles south of here, Tuesday, while attempting to board a Kansas City Southern freight train.

He was thrown under the moving cars and badly mangled. He died a few minutes later.

Poe, with his wife and baby, had been visiting at the home of a brother-in-law, Clyde Roe, near Hutton, and was attempting to return to Kansas City. His family had planned to remain for a longer visit before driving back home.

Sheriff Walter Jones and Coroner J. A. Thornton investigated and said no inquest was necessary.

SAN RAFAEL, Cal.—(AP)—Meyer Golas, 32, Los Angeles burglar, perched on an 85-foot light pole at San Quentin prison Tuesday in a sit-down strike seeking a transfer to "the islands."

Prison officials said they did not know what place he meant. They depended on hunger to force him down. He took along no food when he climbed the pole at lunch time.

If water contracted in freezing, like almost all other liquids, ice would freeze solid.

MIND Your MANNERS

Test your knowledge of correct social usage by answering the following questions, then checking against the authoritative answers below:

1. How should an envelope be addressed to a nun?

2. How should the salutation on the letter to this nun read?

3. How would she be addressed when speaking to her personal?

4. Is it correct to call a Senator who is out of office "Senator Fulton"?

5. Should a rabbi be spoken to as "Rabbi Isaacs" or "Reverend Isaacs"?

What would you do if—
You are writing to your congressman. Address the envelope to him as—
(a) "J. R. Marston, Esq."?
(b) "The Hon. J. R. Marston"?
(c) "His Excellency, J. R. Marston"?

Answers
1. "Sister Mary David Smith."
2. "Dear Sister Mary David."
3. "Sister David" for "Mary" is usually left off.
4. Yes.
5. "Rabbi Isaacs," although "Reverend" would be as acceptable when addressing a letter to him.

Best "What Would You Do" solution—(b) and then add "House of Representatives, Washington, D. C."

More People Than You Ever Saw at Coney Before

Ever see more than a million persons at one time? Just look at this throng (count 'em, if you're skeptical) and you'll have an idea of what such a multitude is like. More than a million swarmed onto the beach at Coney Island, fresh air mecca for New York's sweltering denizens, to set a new attendance record. A breezeless heat wave drove them out of their apartments in search of relief. It's apparent that there was standing room only on the beach.

Hope Man Speaker at Rotary Meeting

The Rev. V. A. Hammons Is Guest Speaker at Texarkana

Community service in Rotary was the subject of an address at the Tuesday night meeting of the Texarkana club by the Rev. V. A. Hammons, of Hope.

The speaker went into details concerning the gradual development of the community service idea, which he said was evolutionary in character.

Community service, as it now operates in Rotary, is vastly different from the type of community service rendered in the beginning. It consists in group service by the club as a whole and individual service by the members.

Hammons addressed largely with matters of club operations under the specific objectives set up by the international organization. He outlined to the club members ways and means of serving the community, this service varying greatly with the size of the community in which the club is located.

The address was presented primarily as a course of instruction for new members of the Texarkana club, of which there are about 20 added this year.

Bird, who was unopposed, will be inducted into office Wednesday night. His candidacy was approved by the city Board of Education.

Mitchell resigned several weeks ago following a campaign for "reform" of the city government sponsored by the Young Business Men's Club.

The vote for Bird was approximately 150.

Meetings Banned Riot-Torn Areas

Citizens Prohibited From Gathering at Cleveland Plants

CLEVELAND, Ohio.—(AP)—A proclamation by Safety Director Elliot Ness prohibited Tuesday night any assemblies in the riot-torn district fronting Republic Steel Corporation's Corrigan-McKinney plant.

"All citizens are hereby prohibited from congregating or gathering in groups, in riotous assembly or mass formations excepting under permit lawfully issued," Ness ordered.

The proclamation barred assemblies with 500 yards of any plant gate.

Asked who would have authority to issue permits to persons desiring to enter the restricted area, he replied: "Patrolmen on the scene will be authorized to issue oral permits."

Ness also announced that company officials agreed to change hours at which employees will enter and leave the plant so that all shift changes will be made during daylight.

After Republic went to court in its effort to curtail picketing, C. I. O. responded it would show paid agents and hired thugs of the company were responsible for the trouble.

"Republic, the Nation's third largest steel producer, asked the Common Pleas Court to fix the number of pickets at each plant entrance, and demanded an injunction against interference with workers."

May Probe Power Deal in Arkansas

President Roosevelt Said to Be in Favor of Investigation

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Representative John E. Rankin, (Dem., Miss.) said Tuesday President Roosevelt told him and other House power bloc members plans for distribution of Tennessee Valley Authority power in Arkansas through the Arkansas Power and Light Company would be investigated.

President Roosevelt said the question of "yardstick" rates had to be referred to the attorney general for an opinion.

Rankin said he and Representative John E. Miller, (Dem., Ark.), John L. McClellan (Dem., Ark.), Knute Hill (Dem., Wash.), Sam Hobbs (Dem., Ala.), John J. Sparkman (Dem., Ala.), H. Jerry Voorhis (Dem., Cal.), Orville Zimmerman, (Dem., Mo.), and former Gov. Walter M. Pierce of Oregon proposed there was no provision for resale of the power at TVA "yardstick" rates.

Rankin urged President Roosevelt to hold up final approval of the contract until it provides for resale at "yardstick" rates.

The Mississippi said the president favored a congressional investigation of alleged propaganda to prevent municipal ownership of power lines.

He said the group also urged construction of additional TVA lines to reach every section in the distribution radius of a TVA dam, through allocation of $100,000,000 of the $1,500,000,000 relief fund.

Removing the "Fever" From a Public Crisis

FOR several days recently, the newsreel pictures of the Memorial Day clash between steel strikers and police at South Chicago became a celebrated cause for the newsreel owners, a Senate investigating committee, and some sections of the public at large.

This little drama unfolded when the newsreel firm decided, as a matter of public policy, not to release the pictures. Then the LaFollette Civil Liberties Committee ordered a showing for its own benefit. And finally, certain groups of self-appointed public defenders began calling for general exhibition of the scenes all over the country.

The outcome was that all of them, in turn, had their way. And eventually, the pictures did go into the theaters. What happened then is significant for the lesson it conveys to impulsive go-getters on both sides of the labor-industry fence.

X X X

JUST what did the average citizen do when he got his first view of the films? The answer is unexcitingly given in a recent issue of Variety, the radio, stage and screen publication.

Theaters showing the film reported that there was little or no reaction to the reels when they were screened, spectators sitting through very quietly in virtually all cases. In fact, the boing, when it was noted at all, was not as strong as it frequently is against some foreign dictator.

The response was so slight that theater operators themselves were surprised, and in some cases were forced to discard precautionary measures of "playing down the billing," in favor of stronger ballyhoo for trade.

Now it may have been an accidental combination of good sense and circumstances that took the "fever" out of this potentially dangerous situation. The details don't have to be remembered. Nor is it significant that the film itself showed nothing conclusive about the guilt or innocence of either side in the strike clash.

X X X

BUT all-important is the cue that this result provides for the men who are delegated to settle today's touchy social problems. The individual citizen, given time enough and a fair chance to mull over a "crisis" in his own deliberate way, usually comes up with the astounding decision that there isn't any "crisis" at all.

Of course, it is impossible to call in all the millions of Americans, put them around a table and let them hash out their problems that way. Obviously, nothing ever would be accomplished. But the leaders to whom the bargaining duties have fallen can make themselves aware of the public will and be guided by it.

If that were done, it is safe to assume that the chorus of curbstone jingoists, who are too quick to "fear the worst," would be effectively silenced.

John Lewis and Pie

JOHN LEWIS is a bold man. He defied William Green and set off to paddle his own C. I. O. canoe. He defied General Motors and Chrysler, and U. S. Steel and all the Little Steels. But now he defies a still more deeply-entranced foe. It is the pie-counter.

His newest venture is a plan to compete with the A. F. of L. in organizing state, county, and municipal workers.

Single-handed, and voluntarily relinquishing the weapons of strike and picket-line, he goes forth to battle the pie-counter. That is the counter where the jobs are laid out at the turn of every administration. That is where every new mayor and governor and board of county commissioners ladles out the juicy slices to faithful political followers.

Unionization of such employees would put a nasty kink into the arms of the boys who wield the pie-knives. They won't like it. Lewis now summons a foe more worthy of his steel, more stubborn than Sloan, more touchy than Taylor, more plowing than Girdler. Or maybe Lewis wants just a little slice of the pie himself.

Deficiency of Vitamins in the Body Is Found to Be an Ally of Diseases

This is the first in a series of 11 articles dealing with deficiency diseases and their relation to the lack of certain vitamins in the body.

(No. 271)
For years it has been known that certain substances taken into the body will produce poisoning. Only recently, however, have we determined that the body may become seriously ill through lack of certain essential ingredients in the diet.

It has long been known that the body must have a certain amount of water in order to carry on its activities. Dehydration, however, is different from the type of disease caused by lack of vitamins. These diseases are now called deficiency diseases.

It can be thought that the average American diet is so good that the deficiency diseases are seldom seen in this country.

However, there are conditions of subnormal health rather than fully developed diseases which are also related to deficiencies of vitamins. These deficiencies are of the greatest importance not only in relationship to the specific diseases they develop, but also to their possible occurrence in association with other diseases.

Most people know that the vitamins in general are labeled A, B, C, D, E, and K, and that B is sometimes called F and G.

Merely knowing the alphabetic designations of the vitamins adds little to the promotion of health and life. An understanding of how a lack of vitamins brings about diseases may be of the greatest use in promoting abundant health.

The absence of each vitamin from the diet acts in a specific and characteristic way. At first it was thought that the vitamins were all organic substances. Since the chemists have been studying their nature, however, some of them have been found to be pure chemicals.

Thus, carotene is a yellow pigment substance out of which vitamin A is developed in the body. Ascorbic acid or hexuronic acid is the substance from which vitamin C is developed. We have also in pure form one of the members of vitamin B.

These vitamins have definite relationships to the reactions of the body toward the germs and toward other poisons. With a deficiency of some of the vitamins, the poisons of diphtheria seem to work more seriously. With deficiencies of other vitamins, drugs have different effects on the body. We are just at the threshold of the complete knowledge necessary to apply the uses of development for the best interests of mankind.

NEXT: A brief description of the vitamins and some of the diseases which absence of these vitamins may cause.

Your Children

By Olive Roberts Barton

It's Too Hot to Nap, But Child Can Relax

Impossible to get the children to bed these days, with the sun blazing in the side windows until eight or nine o'clock D. S. T.?

What are you doing about it? Bundling them up into hot bedrooms where they can't possibly sleep, or allowing them to play quietly in the cooler shadows of the porch?

I'm right with you. I wouldn't put them to bed, either. Of course, it is going to be a major operation when the youngsters back on hard pan and regular hours, but it's worth the fight.

Perhaps you have a cool east room, all ready and waiting for guests. Well, let the guests broil and move the "youth" beds in there. Or if you happen to have one of those miracle places, upstairs or down, a screened porch, take up the Indian rugs and move the pretty chairs and pillows out and make it a sleeping porch for the children.

And When It Rains
Oh, but it might rain. Yes, it might, but it won't rain more than one night a week, and when it does, bundle them all inside, spread a comfort on the floor and let them polish off their slumbers there.

About the baby's bed. Those high slats keep off air, so he has to be made as comfortable as possible in other ways. His crib mattress should be flat, with no nest in the middle to prevent his sprawling and turning. Sheets and under pads should be stretched as flat and light as hands can make them, and fastened down at corners so they won't plait in hot folds under him.

A midsummer night is a midsummer night, and unless you are in the moon, lullabies don't fit. Good judgment is better than all the rules in the book. Don't feel conscience bitten, mother, if you use ingenuity to keep the family even strangely uncomfortable.

Some nights, of course, do get cool, after the first broiling hours, so this is where a handy cover or two, and the bedroom screen, come in. You always have to have emergency measures ready to tap.

Relaxation Good As Nap
Daytime naps in summer are the hardest things in the world to engineer. Too many Juniors lie and fry in hot upper chambers and never close an eye.

Put Junior on a couch in a darkened room somewhere, if it is cooler than his bedroom. And if he stays quiet and relaxed, it will do him as much good as sleeping. When you can't sleep, you can't, and there's an end on it.

How about an electric fan in a child's or baby's bedroom? Are fans dangerous? Not a bit if you put them reasonably high and turn the draft away from the beds. It stirs up air and relieves the dead smothered feeling.

I guess you are wondering, mother dear, with all this hole-and-corner business, if you are to catch any slumber yourself. I think you will, for once you get the children comfortable you'll have a better chance. Anyway, fall is only three jumps ahead, and all this won't last long.

A Book a Day

By Bruce Catton

Fishing Tales From Around the World.

The majority of angling authors prefer to stick to one or two types of fish when compiling their tomes. Zane Grey, while he is an eminent authority on fresh water fish, does not write about the monsters of salt water. Mortimer Norton sticks to trout and bass, Ray Bergman, Cal Johnson and others write on finny folk of stream and lake.

But Leander J. McCormick, originally a Michigan angler who moved to England, and who has fished in waters all over the world, writes entertainingly about popular and little-known fish, both fresh and salt water, in his interesting book, "Fishing Round the World" (Scribner, $5).

One very interesting chapter deals with "the fiercest fish in the world," the Tiger fish, found in the rivers of the east coast of Africa such as the Zambezi, Limpopo, and the upper Nile. This finny fellow has a mouthful of teeth that would put a sabertoothed tiger to shame, and to hook one in such an armor-plated mouth is a rarity and an event in any angler's life. Who's Looney If a "Worthless" Farm Can Pay $50,000 a Year?

HOLLYWOOD.—So people thought Aaron Iverson was crazy, did they, because he settled on that tortuous, untillable quarter-section of Hades that lies near Chatsworth, a few miles northwest of Hollywood?

Nothing but a railswamp could make a living on that land, hey? Shooky, it was remote and forbidding, hemmed in by rocky hills. Dry, too, drier'n a skull in the middle of Death Valley.

But worthless? Well, not exactly. In fact, old Aaron Iverson's place is the most profitable farm around here. Brings in 40, 50 thousand dollars a year without labor or overhead. Crazy, was he? Who's looney now?

No movies were being made in Hollywood when Iverson homesteaded the bars, because that was 30 years ago. And certainly few sane men would have selected it, unless they fish is 33 pounds. The fightingest fish? McCormick believes it is the bonefish found along the gulf coast of Florida and other coastal states. These fish fight with such desperation that they are often boated dead. They leap with a fury that surpasses that of a bass or tarpon, and are always in high gear.

Salmon, trout, bass, musky, shark, marlin, swordfish, Fruma, the nan-eating fish; dorado, the golden fish, and hundreds of other species all have fallen victim to McCormick's wiles with the rod and reel. His adventures with the finny folk make interesting reading, even if you only use a willow branch as a bent pin.—J. F. D.

Iverson's scale of rentals is based on ability to pay. Quickie companies making cheap westerns are charged $150 a day for each camera, and they may shoot on any part of the ranch and use any buildings which haven't been photographed for two years.

But the landlord's "bite" on the major companies is something else again: $100 each for cameras and generators; $2 for trucks; $1 for ordinary cars, wagons or carts; 25 cents for each head of live stock, whether elephant or dog; 50 cents for each person.

These are rates for each day. When you get 700 or 800 extras and technicians, together with horses and mechanical equipment, the bill mounts alarmingly.

Of course it mounts gratifyingly for Mr. Iverson. About 70 now, and squat and grim and white-haired, he sits all day long atop a big rock and keeps a careful check on everything that comes in over the narrow, difficult road that winds in more than a mile from the highway.

He allows visiting picture companies to "but" all the sets they want. But once the shooting is over the sets must remain untouched and intact. That's why so many incongruous structures are to be seen there now.

Iverson protects his tenants' rights. For two years after a set is built and used, he won't allow anybody else to film it. Thus the Samuel Goldwyn palace, can be sure that the sets won't pop up on the screen in some other production, and perhaps even before "Marco Polo" is released.

At the end of two years, though, rival producers may alter the buildings and backgrounds and use them for epics of their own.

And people once thought that Iverson was crazy for settling there!

Two Men Are Held Extortion Charges

Fayetteville and Texarkana Men Are Jailed in Illinois

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—George Arthur, 25, of Fayetteville, Ark., ex-convict arrested by city police on extortion charges, said Tuesday night that his companion, Virgil Stevens, 32, of Texarkana, Ark., was innocent. The pair was arrested when police said they attempted to collect $1,000 from Sam Fernandes, Springfield investment broker. Arthur said that Stevens did not know of the extortion letter sent Fernandes Sunday night. "I told Stevens to meet the car and collect the money," Arthur was quoted by Assistant State's Attorney Frank Pfeiffer, "but he thought I was getting the money from a married woman with whom I was having an affair. I told him I was afraid she wouldn't be alone in the car."

While police discounted the story, Pfeiffer said Stevens' statement contained similar facts. The pair will be arraigned on extortion charges Monday. They were held under $10,000 bond. Both said they had served terms in the Huntsville (Texas) state prison, and declared they had been in Springfield only a week. Had Served 20 Years TEXARKANA, Texas.—(AP)—Virgil Stevens completed a 20-year sentence in the Texas state penitentiary four years ago for the hold-up slaying of T. M. Powell, Texarkana loan broker. Powell was slain March 6, 1926, as he put his automobile in a garage. The then governor of Texas, Jim Ferguson, posted a $500 reward for his slayers. A nation-wide hunt resulted in the arrest of Stevens and A. R. (Dutch) Shaffer. Stevens was tried in April, 1926, and given a 20-year sentence. Shaffer obtained a change of venue to Jefferson, Texas, and was sentenced to life imprisonment. Shaffer, named as accessory, accused Stevens of killing Powell. Congressman Wright Pittman, then prosecuting attorney here, successfully opposed efforts to obtain a pardon for Stevens in December, 1926. Governor Miriam Ferguson commuted Stevens' sentence from 20 to 10 years on June 9, 1933. He was released November 22, 1933, having served the minimum required time under a 20-year term with overtime and commutation credits. Shaffer still is in the penitentiary.

AT THE THEATERS

At the Saenger

The largest package ever wrapped in cellophane is the movie set in "Top of the Town," which opens at the Saenger Thursday. Ten million square inches of cellophane, enough to wrap a freight train 64 cars long, was used to decorate the Moonbeam Room set for the musical.

Because the Moonbeam Room covers 44,500 square feet, more than an acre.

Doris Nolan and George Murphy, in Universal's "Top of the Town"

The vast quantity of cellophane was necessary. It reached from floor to ceiling, a curtain representing the moonlit sky, which served as background for the Moonbeam Room, 100 stories above the street. Four thousand electric lights twinkled as stars behind the curtain. Artificial leaves decorating the set required four million more square inches of black cellophane.

exhibit at the Ford Rotunda is an outgrowth of the first such exhibit at the Ford Exposition at the Chicago World's Fair in 1934. It is intended to preserve in permanent form famous highways whose construction has paced the progress of transportation through the centuries. It includes representations of virtually every type of road surface used since highways first were constructed.

Noteworthy among the highways represented are the Appian Way, the famous Roman military highway; the "Summer Palace" road over which the Manchus rolled from the old capital in what is today modern Peking to the royal summer palace; the ancient Grand Trunk Road of India, whose northern reaches led through the fabled Khayser Pass and the Diamond Road of South Africa; over which Cecil Rhodes transported fabulous fortunes in diamonds from the rich de Beers mines to Fort Elizabeth. Material from the original highways has been incorporated in these sections, slabs from both the Appian Way and the Summer Palace Roads, stones from the Grand Trunk Highway and soil from the Diamond Road. Other highways represented include Belgium's ancient Chaussee d'Aerschot, Australia's western highway, the Ore-

Arkansas Enters Parole Compact

20 Such Agreements Are Being Sought by Gov. Bailey

LITTLE ROCK, Ark.—(AP)—Arkansas and Indiana entered into an interstate parole compact, the first of 20 such agreements sought by Gov. Carl E. Bailey of this state.

The compact was signed by Bailey and Gov. M. Clifford Townsend of Indiana, who wrote "I shall be most pleased to enter into such a compact with you in behalf of our respective states."

The compact, provided under a law passed by the 1937 legislature, provides for mutual helpfulness in relation to persons convicted of crime who may be on probation or parole. Bailey announced that signatures to similar compacts had been promised by the governors of California, Delaware, Maryland, Massachusetts, Montana, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Jersey, Oregon, Rhode Island, Utah, Vermont, West Virginia and North Dakota.

The governor also asked compacts with Arizona, Minnesota, New Mexico, New York, Ohio and Pennsylvania. All these states have laws authorizing such agreements.

Missouri declined to enter into such a compact. Bailey said it is governor had pledged co-operation with the governors of Alabama, Iowa, Louisiana, Missouri, Kansas, Idaho, Florida, Mississippi, Oklahoma, North Carolina, South Carolina, Wisconsin, Nevada, Kentucky and Tennessee. None of these states have parole compact laws.

Under the compact signed by Bailey and Townsend, persons placed on probation or parole in one state may live in the other state if (A) such a person is in fact a resident of or has his family there, or (B) though not a resident of the receiving state and not having his family residing there, the receiving state consents to such a person's being sent there.

Each state receiving parolees or probationers will assume the duties of supervision over them and will be governed by the same standards that prevail for its own probationers and parolees.

Officers of the state sending the probationer or parolee to another state party to the compact may at all times enter that state and apprehend and retake any person on probation or parole. No formalities will be required other than establishing the authority of the officer and the identity of the person to be retaken.

The compact may be renewed at any time by sending six months notice in writing of intention to withdraw.

Man Convicted for Shooting Officer

Thomas J. Hutto to Face Death for Killing at El Dorado

EL DORADO, Ark.—(AP)—A circuit court jury convicted Thomas J. Hutto, Dallas, of first degree murder Tuesday and recommended he be given a death sentence for the slaying here last Wednesday night of Policeman Jim A. Yocom.

The jury deliberated 45 minutes before returning its verdict. The defense presented only one witness, Hutto's daughter, Mrs. Jewel Dadd of Dallas, who testified the accused man had spells of insanity.

Yocom was shot to death as he and two other officers attempted to arrest Hutto and a taxi driver following a $60 drug store hold up. Hutto was wounded in an exchange of shots with the other officers.

Circuit Judge J. S. Britt said he would sentence the man later this week.

Meeting Is Called to Consider Roosevelt Legislation

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(AP)—A group of first-term Senate Democrats, all supporters of President Roosevelt, stepped into the adjournment situation Tuesday night with a meeting to decide what legislation they wish enacted before the session ends. To a meeting arranged by Senator Smathers (Dem., N. J.), they invited the majority leader, Senator Barkley of Kentucky. The meeting was called while administration leaders were considering what portions of the Roosevelt legislative list might have to be deferred in deference to growing sentiment for an early adjournment. The young Democratic group supported President Roosevelt's defeated proposal to reorganize the Supreme Court and also backed Senator Barkley in his close contest for the Democratic leadership, on the ground he was Mr. Roosevelt's choice.

COLONISTS ARRIVE AT JAMESTOWN

SIR WALTER RALEIGH named the new country, to which he had sent settlers, "Virginia." Late in 1606 a band of 120 men and women took ship from England to colonize this promised land. They arrived four months later at the mouth of a river which they called the "James," and set up the colony of Jamestown.

Soon, however, disease and starvation depleted the settlement to a mere 40 inhabitants. From these Capt. John Smith was chosen to trade with the Indians. Through his diplomacy, antagonistic tribes became friendly, the colony began to thrive anew, and Smith was elected governor.

By the autumn of 1609 the population had reached almost 500. Smith returned to England and peace continued for nearly 15 years, when an Indian massacre reduced the population by 350. In 1676, fire almost destroyed the town, and by 1699 the capital of Virginia was moved to Williamsburg.

The settlement of this colony is pictured on the two-cent stamp of the three issued in 1907 on the tercentenary of this event.

Louis and Farr to Fight on August 26

Heavyweight Title Bout Will Be Staged in the Yankee Stadium

NEW YORK.—(AP)—Tommy Farr and Joe Louis met for the first time Tuesday, shook hands, but did not wish each other luck. They were introduced in the offices of the New York State Athletic Commission, where they formally signed articles for their August 26 heavyweight title fight in the Yankee Stadium.

Comments Brief

Their comments on each other were brief and to the point. "I see, but it's a big bloke, aren't he?" said Farr. "Well, the bigger they are, the harder they fall, wot?"

"I'm glad to see him looking so fit," said Louis. "It ought to be a good fight, but I hope to knock him out."

The two fighters were in the same room for five minutes before anybody bothered to introduce them. They stood in opposite corners talking to acquaintances. Neither so much as gave the other a glance. Finally, Chairman John J. Phelan took Farr to Louis' corner and presented him.

"Hello, boy," greeted Tommy. "How are you? Glad to meet you."

Louis stuck out a limp hand and replied:

"Hello, I'm glad to know you, too."

That over, the business of getting the boys to autograph contracts got underway. For a time it looked like there might be open warfare between Farr and Ted Broadbent, his manager.

Manager Gets Some News Broadbent tried to file with the commission a British contract between him and Farr expiring March 1, 1938. Phelan insisted the contract must be on the commission's own forms and run for a year from date of signing. Farr said he wouldn't sign, that he wanted to be on his own after March 1.

"Apparently he doesn't want me to manage him after March," said the surprised Broadbent. "This is news to me."

Promoter Mike Jacobs took the pair into an inner room and soon got them together. It was announced Farr will sign a year's contract with Broadbent, but will have a private agreement with the latter releasing him March 1, 1938.

Details of Contract Articles for the fight specify Louis, as champion, is to receive 40 per cent of the net gate. Farr's end will be 20 per cent.

Major League Man-Hunters Have Hard Job

Major league man-hunters, such as the Cardinals' Charley Barrett, right, constantly are on the lookout for youths as promising as Outfielder Charley Keller, inset, University of Maryland product who is hitting .350 or so for Newark. Biggest Gamble in Baseball Is the Purchase of Major League Prospects

G-Men Have a Soft Job Compared to Major League Scouts Who Can't Go By Fingerprints

This is the fifth of a series of six illustrated articles on "The Other Side of Baseball."

By RICHARD MCCANN
NEA Service Sports Writer

G-Men who go a-huntin' for public enemies have a snap job compared to that of the little posse of men known as major league baseball scouts who beat about the bushes in search of public heroes.

The G-Men, at least have fingerprints to go by. The baseball scouts have nothing.

The unceasing search for talent is the most exasperating, discouraging part of the business of conducting a baseball firm. And the purchase of talent is the biggest of all gambles.

The baseball scout, you see, no matter how astute he may be, never knows for sure just what he's paying for. Records mean little when a man is lifted from the obscurity of a minor league and shoved into the hot, withering glare of major league headlines.

Connie Mack, for instance, paid out $10,000 for Paul Strand, who had a .400 batting average in the Pacific Coast League. As things turned out, Strand wasn't worth the curette cast. On the other hand, Detroit once paid only $700 for a 240-bitting outfielder in the Sally League named Ty Cobb. You may have heard of him.

Sometimes, of course, a high-priced

Scout Travels 20,000 Miles The strange part about most of the 30 or so regular major league scouts is that they couldn't get into the big show themselves when they were players and yet here they are opening the door to the majors for countless youngsters.

The Cardinals' Charley Barrett, dean of scouts, never could get out of the Texas League as an outfielder, but he has shown the way up to Jeff Tesreau, Art Fletcher, Jim Bottomley, Charley Grimm, Gus Mancuso, Chick Hafey, Pepper Martin, Bing Miller, Muddy Ruel—aw, you can't begin to name the men Mr. Barrett has scouted at and said, "Yeah—I think he'll do. I'll take him."

Mr. Barrett, and many other scouts, will travel as much as 20,000 miles annually by auto, train, bus, plane, and, once, in his case, by tractor. Mr. Barrett had to ride such a vehicle up a ratty mountain road to take a gander at some hay-pitcher who had all the fellers around and about flabbergasted.

There are some 500,000 young men and old performing in minors, sandlots, and colleges. A scout considers himself lucky if he finds one among all who is a major leaguer right off the bat. Most of the discoveries need further seasoning.

Brandham Saved Minors In the case of outfielders, a scout looks for speed, a good arm, and hitting power for extra bases. The first lesson must be a good batter, and have the ability to shift his feet. The other infielders must have limber backs and shoulders, good hands, speed, and agility.

A catcher must have a good arm, he must be a deadly tagger, and he must be smart and alert. All a scout asks of a pitcher is a fast ball. Poise, curves, technique can be taught; change of pace and control can be acquired.

All players, regardless of position, size, color, or creed, must have courage, quiet habits, sound health, and even disposition. Sometimes a scout is willing to overlook habits and disposition, but courage and health must always be there.

Five years ago a scout did not have to go far to look for players. Back in 1932 there were only 11 minor leagues. Baseball was dying at its roots.

But along came William G. Bramham as czar of minor league baseball resolved to return the game to local citizens. Mr. Bramham, elected president of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, the still holds the post. Believes that major league ownership killed local interest by robbing the game of inter-city rivalry.

His campaign was so successful that only about 20 per cent of minor league teams are owned by major clubs. The rest have working agreements with the major outfits.

And as a result of Mr. Bramham's tireless efforts, the number of minor leagues has trebled in the last five years. There are now 31 in operation, ranging from three Class AA loops to 20 in Class D.

This total of 20 Class D leagues is the brightest result in the campaign. These are the kindergartens of baseball. By putting the lower rungs back in, Mr. Bramham is helping more youngsters get a start up the ladder to the big show.

St. Louis Outfielder Gets 21st Homer in Ninth Inning

ST. LOUIS.—(AP)—Coming to bat in the last half of the ninth with two out and the score tied, Joe Medwick Tuesday blasted his twenty-first, home run of the season just inside the left field foul line marker to give the Cards a 9-8 victory over the New York Giants.

The defeat dropped the Giants three games behind the league-leading Cubs.

The gas house gang appeared to have won the game in the fourth, when they blasted Carl Hubbell off the mound with seven hits, including a four-bagger by Johnny Mize and doubles by Terry Moore and Don Padgett.

got another hit off Relief Pitcher Dick Coffman and roled up a total of eight runs.

But the Giants, with Blondy Ryan at short, didn't give up there. They had scored once in the first half of the fourth, and bounced back with four more in the sixth to knock St. John out of the box.

Ryan's second single formed part of another two-run rally in the seventh, while Chiozza's second double, a sacrifice and a single by Joe Moore, tied the score at 8-all in the eighth.

Vesper services and evangelistic meetings are held in the evenings. The program is non-denominational. Those wishing further information should address Claude L. Jones, Ozark Church Life Conference, Caddo Gap, Arkansas.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go
The liver should pour out two pounds of bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels, gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, rank and the world looks punk. Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes these good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

Soil Conservation Covers Wide Area

Practices Are Applied to 1,218,686 Acres in Region Four

Coordinated measures and approved cultural practices for conservation of soil and moisture are being applied on more than 1,218,686 acres of farm lands in Region 4 of the Soil Conservation Service, which is comprised of Louisiana, Arkansas, and Texas, except high plains areas, according to a report issued in Fort Worth, Texas, by Louis P. Merrill, Regional Conservator. The report represents work accomplished by the Service up to July 1, Mr. Merrill stated. Erosion control work in the three-state region is being carried on under 1,683 cooperative agreements with individual landowners or operators.

Highlights of the report on different phases of the complete erosion control program are as follows: 6,071 acres of land have been retired from cultivation to pasture or woodland; contour ridges have been constructed on 53,959 acres; 26,386 acres are protected by contour cultivation alone; 92,947 acres are protected by strip crops and contour cultivation; 151,112 acres are protected from rapid run-off of rain water by a combination of strip crops, terraces and contour cultivation; 12,148.5 miles of terraces have been constructed in project and camp areas; 13,827,939 trees have been planted on steep or eroded slopes for erosion control; winter cover crops have been planted on 43,702 acres. Of the 1,218,686 acres under cooperative agreement with the Service, all phases of the coordinated erosion control program have been completed on 857,511 acres, representing 2,753 farms. Soil Conservation Associations in Region 4 have a membership of 15,871. An indication of the widespread interest of farmers and business men in the program to protect farm lands from soil and water losses is brought out by the fact that some 84,000 people have made inspection tours of farms where erosion control work is being done. These visitors, coming in groups sponsored largely by county agents and vocational agriculture teachers, come to project and camp areas, according to Mr. Merrill, for the purpose of studying approved erosion control measures and practices as applied under actual farming conditions. "The year just closed has seen a great spread in the use of approved erosion control measures and practices throughout Region 4," Mr. Merrill stated. "Farmers visiting Soil Conservation Service work areas have returned to their homes and adapted to their own farming operations many of the phases of the coordinated erosion control program. This growing interest on the part of farmers of our region in soil and moisture conservation programs for their farms will be definitely reflected in the future agricultural welfare of the entire Southwest," he said. One of the major returns to the government to compensate for expenses incurred for cooperation and assistance extended to landowners and operators in project and camp areas is from the visitors who see the work and then apply the measures on their own farms at their own expense with only technical assistance. "For this reason," he stated, "the technical men of the Service and the cooperating farmers see that a complete job is done on each farm under agreement and that the measures used are applied in such an economical, sensible, practical way that the visiting farmer will not say, 'The government can afford this, but I can't,' but will say instead, 'Why didn't I think of doing this before?'"

Decrease in Auto Deaths for June

10 Per Cent Increase in Motor Mileage Is Reported

CHICAGO.—(AP)—Deaths on the highways decreased three per cent last month, compared with June, 1935, ending a period of 13 months in which the totals were higher than the corresponding periods of the previous year, the National Safety Council reported Wednesday. June traffic deaths numbered 2,860, a drop of 90 from last year's June total, in spite of an estimated 2,000,000,000-mile increase in motor travel.

The council said the unfavorable balance with last year persisted in six comparisons. Traffic deaths for 1937 up to June 30 were placed at 17,200, against 15,150 during the first six months last year. The increase of 13 per cent in deaths was tempered by a 10 per cent increase in motor mileage. The half-year rate of 14.5 deaths per 100,000,000 miles of travel was only three per cent above 1935. June's death list compared with 3,050 in May, 1937, and 2,800 in May, 1936.

Most Cities Reduce Toll
Half of the 32 states which reported to the council for June showed fewer auto deaths than June a year ago, while 11 of the 41 states which reported for either five or six months showed decreases in comparison with similar periods in 1936. The nation's cities as a whole reduced traffic deaths nine per cent in June, but their record for the first half-year was 11 per cent higher than in 1936. Eighty-three cities of 10,000 or more population had no deaths up to July 1.

Of 13 cities having more than 500,000 population, only three—Chicago, Philadelphia and Cleveland—showed increases in June. New York, which reduced deaths from 65 in June, 1936, to 61 last month, continued to lead the group with a traffic death rate of 10.6 per 100,000 population. Milwaukee was second with a rate of 13.

Deaths among persons over 65 increased 45 per cent, while among children from five to 14 years they declined one per cent. Between the ages of 25 and 64 the increase was 28 per cent, and from 15 to 25 years, deaths rose four per cent, the council said.

Undaunted by the fact that moonbeams, especially during the sylph-like maidens, male dancers undertake all popular numbers, "rainstorms" turn into "thunder" and the crowd is more pleased with male dancers' hula, however, wearing grass skirts.
